The New Charter.

This important question has at last been taken up, and is the topic of discus sion by the press and the people. Meet ings are held every night, but we hear as yet of no one on the stump opposing its passage. It has imperfections undoubtedly, but is certainly an improvement on the old one, and will no doubt carry by a large majority.

The Rain Storm.

A rain storm came to the relief of suffering human nature yesterday afternoon, and soon cooled the hot atmosphere. There was a heavy fall of rain for an hour, accompanied with wind. A cherry tree was blown down in the yard of Mr. Irwin Bell, corner of Fifteenth and Madison, slightly damaging the kitchen. A few trees in the suburbs of the city were also blown down.

Hon, Mr. Golladay's Speech.

Hon. J. S. Golladay delivered a speech on Saturday evening, on reconstruction and the currency, but the latter formed the more important branch of his address. He is an avowed repudiationist of the whole bonded debt. It is understood that he is a candidate for United States Senator from Kentucky, and makes his race chiefly on this platform. Mr. Golladay is an effective speaker, and presented his views with clearness and power.

A New Edifice to be Erected.

It is understood that the congregation of the Second Presbyterian church (Rev. Stuart Robinson) have purchased from Col. Geo. The new church will cost about one hundred thousand dollars.

The New Currency.

A few specimens of the new ten cen currency have found their way to this city. The note is a trifle smaller than the former issue. On the left is the head and bust of a rather pretty woman, with abundant flowing tresses, a liberty cap and a scaly coat of mail. On the right is the Treasury seal, done in red. The reverse side follows old fashions in color being a dark green. The figures are in Arabic instead of Roman numerals. The Police matters in the city yesterday were not very lively. At the First-street station six drunks and disorderly conduct and two lunatics, occupied the cells and made the day in that immediate locality hideous with their yells and unearthly screeches.

Not a single name graced the jail slate at a late hour last night.

We heard of no disturbances occurring at either of the numerous beer gardens yesterday, though an enormous amount of lager was drank up-we mean down.

AN OLD FIREMAN GONE. Beath of Peter Berry.

At half-past 12 o'clock P. M., on Saturday, Peter Berry died. He was, perhaps, the oldest fireman in the department at the time of his death. He had served the city in the capacity of a fireman for seventeen years, having been one of the charter members of the old Lafayette (hand) engine company. A. man of steady habits, irreproachable character, kind and social disposition, every one who gained his acquaintance became his friend.

The deceased was about 45 years of age. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn the loss of one who was ever a kind and affectionate husband, and indulgent and watchful father.

The officers and members of the fire department, feeling keenly the death of their friend and comrade, held a meeting at the office of the Chief Engineer on Saturday night. We give the following offi-

Ups and Downs in Life.

Fortune is said to be fickle, at best, Tate isn't much better, if a fellow trusts it too far. Some years ago a worthy young knight of the tape and shears arrived in Louisville and "set up shop." His name was Rupert Rausch, and he came from Germany. He then followed an honora ful and exemplary citizen. But he was not satisfied with the daily routine of shop-work, and essayed life as a saloonist, He set up a first-class saloon (of the kind in a central locality, and furnishing i with a few knock-kneed chairs, three zeilels and a half, a quarter of beer, and a nuarter dozen bretzels, for those who night want to refresh themselves at his establishment. But the sequel proved that Rupert was not cut out for a success ful beer-slinger. His mercurial tempera- the man into custody and placed him in had for beating time on the noddles of such customers as asked for credit after they had drank Rupert's beer. This little weakness brought him to the police station. From one difficulty he fell into another, until finally his splendid saloon was seized by an unrelenting creditor, who, as Rupert said, had a "cattle' mortgage upon it, which, if bed-bugs and other small animals were taken into account, may have been very true. From one misfortune Rupert ran into another. until, several days ago, fate and misfor tune found him a passenger in the "Black Maria," on his way to the celebrated summer resort familiarly called Beargrass where he will play with the pebbles along the shores of that classic stream for the period of thirty days. Rupert's former vocation must have taught him that it is "never too late to mend," an axiom he will not fail to realize while chewing the bitter cud of reflection at the city's asylum for the erring.

A Generous Proposition.

Rev. A. H. Redford, D.D., author of the History of Methodism in Kentucky, gives all the profits of this interesting and valuable work to the Tennessee Orphan Asy lum at, Clarksville, on as many copies as the agent can sell or has sold. This new work has the highest commendations of the secular and religious press, and is indorsed not only by the journals of the Methodist church but also by those of other Christian denominations. With its literary excellence, the force and facinations of its narratives, biographies, and the skillful grouping of men, the deep philosophy of events, and maintaining a beautiful vein of piety throughout, and the entire proceeds to be given to a noble chairty, appealing with claims unsurpass ed, to the tenderest sympathies of humanity, we predict for it unparalleled sale.

Let those who would heed the wail of distress which comes up for help from thousands of destitute orphans in the South, consider that the book is richly worth the price-a single incident of its numerous incidents frequently being more than remunerative, and that the profits are devoted to furnishing a home and edu cational facilities, with wholesome influences, to the destitute and helpless orphans

When he arrived at Marshall street he met two policemen who were hunting for the same rash youth, who had in the short time, that intervened since leaving First street, got into a difficulty with some one on Marshall street. The three officers caught up with the young man, who gave the officers a chase of several blocks before they could bring him to a halt. THE SIXTH LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT. Whaley & Co., on First street, between

Duke vs. White. For the Louisville Express

Mr. Editor-A very spirited and sensible article appeared in a recent issue of The Daily Times, embracing some whole some truths for the digestion of the voters of the Sixth district. In regard to Gen Duke it holds the following language 'Gen. Duke, the 'most available man,' a son of Mars,' unaccustomed to the performance of civil duties, a stranger, undomiciled, standing solely upon his miliary record, is put forward as a formidable opponent to Col. White. No intelligent citizen will fail to dsicern the attitude of Gen. Duke and the interests he represents Identified with, or at least supported by an obnoxious 'clique,' and possibly in the interest of one 'high in authority,' whom he is indebted for his present profit able office, and running upon a sentimen to which our people, in the kindness of their hearts, have already accorded too much, he boldly takes the field against one of Louisville's oldest and worthies citizens. True, he has an undouted righ to become a candidate, but upon what does he rest his claims for sympathy and support of our people Although a Kentuckian, he has cently returned to the State, and has re sided but a few months in the district in which he offers. And if he were a Loui ianian, as he is a Kentuckian, he would b known by fame only as a 'carpet-bag

This has the ring of the true metal. No man who believes the representations of "Ninth Ward" to be correct can consein entiously vote for Gen. Duke. It is a note ions fact that he has been but a short while a "citizen," and previous to the commencement of the present canvass, was almost a total stranger to the voters of the district. His military fame, it is true, had preceded him, for he was known not only to the inhabitants of this partic ular district, but to the State and country as "Morgan's brains," (?) possessing some military capacity. But the mere fact that a man is in any degree a success as a military chieftain, does not of itself entitle nim to greater consideration than others whose genius takes a less destructive turn especially when the question of fitness for the discharge of civil duties is involved. If Gen. Duke is, as charged, the represen tative of a "circle" or "clique" or a pecu-liar class of men, or if he is in the interes "clique" or a pecuof any individual, seeking thereby to enhance such interest, or if he represents the tobacco interests, that is, the weigher warehouseman and inspector and not the buyer and seller, then indeed he deserves to be discountenanced by every honest voter. We would be far from applying the odious epithet, "carpet-bagger," to Gen. Duke, although every one must al low he runs a great risk of being placed We know him to in just such category. We know him to be a gentleman and scholar, and congratuour citizens upon their good fortune in having one in their midst capable in time of becoming a good citizen and an ornament to the city and State. No take the General one would more gladly the hand and bid him God speed in our community, than ourselves, or under Therefore permit me proper circumstances, cheerfully accord am no longer a candi- him our vote. But when General Duke places himself in opposition to one of the "oldest and worthiest" citizens, one with whom our citizens have been associated almost "time out of mind," and one who is universally known to be a man of honor, integrity and capacity-and one, too, who has proved himself abundantly able to represent our interests at Frankfort, we must east our vote against him.

Colonel White has the confidence and esteem of every good citizen, and will undoubtedly be returned to the Legislature.

Mr. Delano's Ruling

The wholesale liquor dealers are still and right well contested it will be. exercised over the late ruling of the Commissioner. As this is a matter of great interest to a large portion of the business plain it, so that the public at large may see how needlessly burdensome, and we think improper, this construction is.

Mr. Delano, in his circular No. 76, says: Under the provisions of section 25 every barrel of rectified spirits filled for shipment, sale or delivery on the premises of any authorized rectifier, must be gauged and inspected and have affixed thereto the stamp for rectified spirits.

Mr. Delano then proceeds to define what constitutes a rectifier, as follows: Any person who purchases tax-paid spirits and redistils or compounds the same, or who purifies or refines such spirits, is a rectifier as defined by law, and the spirits so redistilled, compounded, refined or purified, are rectified spirits, and must have the stamp for rectified spirits

The law, section 59, defines a rectifier in somewhat different language, as follows: Every person who rectifies, purifies, or refines distilled spirits or wines by any process other than by original and continuous distillation from mash, wert, or wash, through continuous closed vesse and pipes, until the manufacture thereof is complete and every wholesale or retail liquor dealer who has in his possession any still or leach tub, or who shall keep any other apparatus for the purpose of reining in any manner distilled spirits, and any person who, without rectifying, purifying, or refining distilled spirits, shall by mixing such spirits, wine, or other iquor, with any materials, manufacture any spurious, imitation, or compoun liquors for sale under the name of whisky brandy, gin, rum, wine, spirits, cordials o wine bitters, or any other name, shall b regarded as a rectifier, and as being en

Nothing can be plainer than that this refers to two classes of persons. It seems then that the Commissioner is a law unto himself. He ignores both the letter and spirit of the law as enacted by Congress, and makes one to suit himself, or to serve the ends of favored individuals. The law says that a wholesale dealer is

Mr. Delano says they must and shall have a rectifiers' stamp.

We learn that the Assessor of this district decides that the addition of anything whatever to a barrel of whisky is rectifying. For instance, some retailers prefer a dark color, and when this is so it is the universal practice to add sufficient burnt sugar to make the color dark enough. Mr. Needham decides that no matter how little change may be effected, that any change of any conceivable nature is rectifying, and to add this without paying a rectifiers' license, subjects the liquor to seizure and confiscation.

Now let us see what the law says about these slight changes.

Part of section forty-five says

Every wholesale dealer shall provide himself with a book, &c. &c., and shall, on part thereof (it is here implied that a wholesale dealer may draw off) or add water or anything thereto, (it is here implied that a wholesale dealer may add

From the wording of this section it is apparent that the framers of the law had in view changes in the character of spirits ture of spurious liquors.

That there are other changes known to all dealers is true, and it was intended as simple justice by the framers of the law, that the law make recognition of the fact.

The law admits that there are dealers in spirits other than rectifiers. The Assessor says not. The law makes plain proviother than rectifiers' stamps. Mr. Needham positively refuses to affix any other the law is improper and unjust.

> THE English and the Americans surpass all other people in the size and elegant typography of their newspapers. Many French books are handsomely printed, but the Paris newspapers are small, poorly printed skeets, barren of news, and showing ability only in their departments of theatrical and art criticism and gossip, and of anecdotes, witticisms and small talk about society, politics and the doings of the day, which make up a large part of the limited amount of reading matter they give. There are papers printed in the Sandwich Islands that are far superior to any of the French journals as specimens of typogra phy. The Independent Belge, the leading ournal of Brussels, would not, in appearance, be creditable to a backwoods town in Kentucky, and the newspapers of Madrid are even less attractive. The Atlantic cannot afford to lose the small amount of interest which attached to the supposed presence of these solitary peaks, but "facts are stubborn things," and it has now been placed be-yond a doubt that they are not to be found, at least in the latitude and longitude in which they appear on the charts Lieutenant Johnson, in the course of his soundings, went over the exact spot where they are indicated in the chart, and found more than two thousand fathoms of water. with deep water all around, and not the slightest trace of rock or shoal in any direction. The sooner, therefore, they come out of the Admirality map the better, and it would be curious to know how they ever got there at all.

From the locality of these fictitious pinnacles the cable course is kept in a pretty regular depth of from one thousand eight hundred to two thousand fathoms, and throughout over a soft bed of mud, mixed with myriads of the most minute shells. These shells comprise various forms of diatomacia, which, though perfect in their organization, are so exquisitely small as only to be visible under the most powerful microscopes. They are really as fine as flour, and the greater part of the bed of the Atlantic is covered with the debris of these minute animalculæ, the existence of which proves conclusively, what was long denied, that at these great depths there is an absolute cessation of all motion.

Terrible Adventure.

A private secret police was organized in Kokomo, Indiana, a short time ago, against the thieves and burglars, it is said, and one night a party of four, seeing a suspicious person in the street, followed up and shut in upon him when he had disappeared in an inclosed piece of ground. He was not there! They were non-plussed, when, fortunately, one of them looked up into a large fruit tree. He was An idea came. They were astounded. They dement. They were astounded. They de-liberated. The man must be taken down, they agreed, and the story of his death reported truthfully. They investigated. They had treed a gentleman of rags, who was on private police service as a scare crow-custodian of cherries.

Elihu Burritt will have to look out for his laurels. There is a man in the Brooklyn navy-yard who has for many years done the work and drawn the pay of a machinist, who has yet found time during all this while to gratify a yearning thirst for knowledge. It may be surpris-ing, yet it is nevertheless true, that he has mastered the French, German and Italian tongues, made himself partially acquainted with Hebrew, and obtained a thorough knowledge of botany and geology. He continues to work on from day to day at the navy-yard bench, spending all his nights and noons in study, and husbandOLD MAN DENT.

The Story of a Picture. From the New Orleans Picavune.

Near the centre is one worn and defaced by age. It yet discloses the cunning of a master mind, and is the work of an artis of repute. It represents a lady of the court of the Grand Monarch, and is remarkable for the exquisite beauty of the face, the finish and elegance of its attire. There is something about it that tells the observer that it is no creation of the imagination, but the semblance of one who lived and suffered. The proprietor speaks of it with reserve, and yet views it with a reverence bestowed upon none of the rest. Its history, however, is known to many, and a romantic story is woven with the worn picture, that carries with it a fascination as engaging as a story of the crusade or a legend of the Templers. It is said she was the daughter of an old plonial Governor, educated at St. Cloud. nd one of the noted beauties of that brill iant court. Coming to Louisiana with her father she formed the acquaintance and engaged the affections of a young officer in the colonial militia. Other views, how-ever, were entertained of her by her family, and when her attachment became known, she was confined in a cell in the old mansion on Bienville street, to reduce to obedience. Here she committed suicide. The story went out that she had been murdered. The populace rose in arms and demanded that the body should be subjected to inspection, and that physicians of repute should decide for them the manner of her death. Her father, broken-hearted at the death of his child shortly afterward returned to his native land. And now comes the sequel to the story. It is claimed that the Countess married before her death the young miliiaman and left a son.

The descendants of this issue now live n the city, and claim that the immense landed estate of the first proprietor which looked up into a large fruit tree. He was there. They had him. METHODISM IN KENTUCKY.

Some Notices of Rev. Dr. Redford's New Book.

From the Memphis Christian Advocate. We have already expressed obligations to the author for the compliment of an exquisitely beautiful set of that important and popular work, Redford's History of Methodism in Kentucky, in two volumes, beautiful in material, printing and bind-ing, and most creditable to the workmanship of our publishing house. It is no easy task to reckon the indebtedness of the religious public, and particularly of our own communion, to the author for the life-like pictures he has drawn of the men the scenes and the events belonging to the by-gone days when "Christianity in Earnest" was planted in the wilds of the West. This is the charm of the book-as it is the most attractive element of history, secular and religious, whether written the one by Macaulay or the other by Stevens, and now by our own Redfordthat it is not only biographical, but in-tensely personal, living and moving; and all the while one reads, he sees, hears and feels the presence of mighty men and great deeds, as though the author had acually summoned them from the grave and tually summoned them from the grave and the past. But there are many other charms upon which we would delight to dwell, if we could not do better—refer readers to the work itself? let no one fail to get a copy of Redford's History of Methodism in Kentucky.

To confirm this counsel, we have pleasure in adding the authority of an accom-

The change of color of the leaves n autumn from green to red has been attributed to the effect of acid, and it was asserted that the green color could be restored by submitting the leaves to the action of an alkali. This hypothesis, however, was advanced without any basis of facts to support it, but the London Athenæum serts that the theory has been established by experiment. Autumn leaves placed under an exhausted receiver with vapor of ammonia, it is asserted in nearly every instance lost the red color and re newed their green. This preparation is a concentrated Fluid Extract of Honduras Sarsaparilla and Queen's Root or Stillingia, containing in soution a neutral salt of Iodine, with aromates and sugar sufficient to render palatable. The well-known alterative properties of these articles is secured by carefully selecting the crude drugs, for, in the case of Sarsaparilla, it is a well-known fact that at least nine-tenths from bad handling or age. Fortunately it is easily known. By chewing a little of the root, if good, a prickly sensation is produced in the throat which remains for hours. If it does not produce this effect, it is worthless. Good Stillingia is more easily gotten, but, like Sarsaparilla, may lose its efficacy by improper treatment in the efforts to extract its active principle. The process must be carefully performed by a competent person fully informed as to the conditions required to secure a perfect result.

What I Claim as Meritorious in This Compound

Is, that it contains the medicinal principles of Good Sarsaparilla and Stillingia, carefully extracted by the most approved and scientific ess, and is made the vehicle to contain fodine salt in a condition not liable to be sted by time or decomposed by the chemicaction of any other of the articles with the sesseciated; but, on the contrary.

We find the following printed at the head of the editorial column of the Patriot and Union, Harrisburg, Pa .:

$1,000 to $800.-We are authorized by several citizens of Chambersburg to anounce the above standing bet that Judge Packer will be elected the next Governor of Pennsylvania. $1,000 will be put up against $800 that Packer will be elected Come on with your stamps.

THE Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune says the friends of Judge Dent deny the correctness of the paragraph in these dispatches last night regarding that gentleman's interview with Secretary Boutwell. They do not deny, however, that Gov. Boutwell has declared to them his intention to use the patronage of the Treasury Department for the Lieutenant-General Sheridan and staff benefit of the Radical party in the South. arrived here to-day and are the guests of Of course not. They know Boutwell will do that.

THE CURE IS PERMANENT.

The Chill Once Broken Will Not Return.

Contains No Quinine or Arsenic,

nor Any Deleterious Substance Whatever.

This preparation is carefully compounded of purely vegetable ingredients, and never fails, when properly taken, to cure the most obstinate case of fever and ague, neuralgia, and all malarious diseases. Unlike chill remedies generally, it requires no purgative to be taken with it, the medicine itself acting gently and agreeably upon the liver and bowels, effectually removing the cause of the disease, not merely temporarily checking it.

Herein consists one great advantage it has over all other preparations. The crowning the permanency and certainty of its cure, is the fact that no injury whatever can arise from its use, as is certain to be the case when quinine or arsenic are taken, which are the principal ingredients of most of the chill medicines now in use. Quinine, acting upon the nervous system, produces, according to our best authorities, "a feeling of tightness or distension of the head, ringing, buzzing or roaring in the ears, partial deafness," &c.,

and, when the dose is increased, "complete deafness, diminution or loss of sight, dilated or immovable pupil, coma, and great prostra-
